As an architect with a bent for viticulture, Carlo Nerozzi has always striven to express his vision of nature through his wines. The cellar lies atop the San Pietro hill, a few kilometres from Lake Garda, and the ten or so hectares of vineyard are planted to the classic Garda varieties, as well as to cabernet sauvignon and merlot, the latter with but few vine-rows but of impressive quality. All the wines are marked by a certain refinement, with taut, crisp, elegant palates. There were three wines in our finals, emblematic of the high quality of the Garda designations. Custoza Sanpietro 2013 shows emphatic pear, apple, and minerally flint, expanding decisively in the mouth for a long, lingering finale. Always one of the most impressive, Bardolino 2015 offers wild red berry and black pepper, also infusing the palate, which is both rich and delicate. The Chiaretto CorDeRosa 2015 turned in a fine performance, with a lovely fusion of fragrance, gracefulness, and personality.
